in San Luis another clergyman is trouble for marrying a couple, thinking that it was lawful to do so, as the laws had been published before April last. The marriage matters will no doubt gradually get right, but just at present innumerable couples anxious to be made happy are in a most unhappy frame of mind.

At one of the recent public school examinations the questions asked was: "With what was the world originally charged?" To which "the hopeful youth" passed off by inspiration.

With writing Shakespeare's plays." I know who have secured passages to Rome in R. M. S. Atlatro do not produce any more. R. M. D. can't get any necessary rest, their births will be disposed to the innumerable bidders for them, men in Peuser's well-known publishing establishment have struck, not higher wages, but owing to an innovation which they have to call him by it instead of his name. The absurd proceeding has roused the anger of the men, who naturally object to being treated as convicts. The tram managers in town are red with indignation about Mr. Chapeau wanting to run through their doors, right left and centre, with a new system. They have protested, and the Lord Mayor has asked them to try and keep till he looks into the matter. The
